HDBR approves plan for former Victoria Inn

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison's Historic District Board of Review (HDBR) on Tuesday approved several changes to a project targeting the restoration and revitalization of the Victoria Inn on the east end of Main Street in downtown Madison.

The 1890 structure, owned by Mark E. Nay for several years when it declined into an unkempt residence hotel, was sold to developer Mark A. Cady in 2019 for $130,000 before being resold on contract to Justin McGillian of McGillian Holding LLC late last month for $140,000.

Cady planned to combine 18 hotel rooms to make about 10 spacious apartments with the building renamed Old Madison Inn. That project stalled last year during the COVID-19 pandemic so Cady sold to McGillian who now plans to see the project through with the 18 rooms combined into about 14 to 16 apartments for both lease and rental with some earmarked for AIRbnb use.

Under the plan McGillian submitted to the HDBR Tuesday, he will remove the awnings, the smaller windows on the sides of the structure and cover the exterior in LP SmartSide siding with the stucco-over-brick bottom of the structure replaced with a stone-like material. Previously, McGillian received staff approval to replace deteriorating windows with aluminum clad wooden windows and exterior doors with fiberglass doors.

There will be increased exterior lighting over and beside each door and overheard doors will be installed in the basement level to allow interior parking of golf carts to embrace Madison's growing role as a golf cart community. A portion of the basement area will be developed as a common area that could be used for serving or events.

In an interview after the HDBR meeting, McGillian, a residential and commercial property developer, said he didn't have a time line on when the work would be done but that as soon as permits and approvals are granted he plans to proceed with work.

"We're still dealing with a lot of permits and approvals so it's going to take awhile," he said. However, he noted there is a need in Madison for more housing and Airbnb-like facilities so he wants to put the property back in use as soon as possible.

He emphasized that the work must be done right and with attention to quality and detail because with the work currently going on in Madison — places like the Fairfield Inn & Suites by Marriott in the old Cotton Mill building and the Tower Apartments in the former Tack Factory — the "market support quality."

"We want it to be some place nice," McGillian said. "After all, when you've got a Marriott here to choose from you've got to meet that level of quality."

The HDBR board approved certificates of appropriateness for all the work McGillian requested and several members expressed their gratitude for his company taking on the project and redeveloping a structure that had become an eyesore at the southwestern gateway to the city.

Jefferson County Transitional Services Inc. (JCTSI) will soon open its second Ruth Haven halfway house in downtown Madison but for those who pass through the facility a better name might be gateway to a better future.

Kimberly Taylor, JCTSI president/treasurer, hopes the latest Ruth Haven residential facility will be the beginning of a brighter future for the women who spend time there recovering from alcohol and/or substance abuse as they transition from state corrections back into the community.

The new JCTSI facility, located on St. Michael's Avenue, will likely become operational in the next few weeks with bedrooms, a kitchen, classrooms and an office and room for a live-in manager.

Mayor proposes renaming Jaycee Park

BY BOB DEMAREE

Changes to four city ordinances received support from the Madison Parks Board on Tuesday including one that will rename Jaycee Park on the riverfront after former Madison Mayor Damon Welch, who died unexpectedly in office in September of 2019.

Damon L. Welch

"Renaming Jaycee Park is a befitting tribute to the contributions that Mayor Welch made to the east end of downtown Madison that brought us the restored Cotton Mill hotel and the new bridge approach," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. "Like several mayors before him, the naming of a park allows for his family and the community to reflect on Mayor Welch's contributions. We will also name the shelter house after the Jaycee Club for their long-term contributions to the youth of our community."

Once the park name change is official, Courtney said a sign calling the area "Damon L. Welch Park" will be installed at the site. Additionally, Courtney said there will be a plaque on the shelter house that will note the contributions of the Madison Jaycee Club to the community.

Jefferson County COVID-19 advisory back in the 'orange'

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County's COVID-19 positivity rating is still on the rise and on Wednesday the county was moved back to an "Orange" advisory status, meaning that the community's virus spread is approaching high levels.

"We are continuing to experience a COVID-19 outbreak in one of our congregate settings," said Tammy Monroe, Jefferson County Health Department Administrator. "A congregate setting is defined as an environment where a number of people reside, meet or gather in close proximity for a limited or extended period of time. Due to this outbreak, we are continuing to see our positivity rate climb. However, not all of our new cases this week stem from the congregate setting, we are seeing mild to moderate community spread."

Two weeks ago, Jefferson County moved to a "Yellow" advisory, indicating moderate community spread, after several weeks at a "Blue" advisory indicating low community spread.

Local music promoter looking for 'rave' reviews

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

They say when a nuclear device is detonated it emits an electromagnetic pulse, or EMP that will knock out all electronics in the vicinity. But I've been told that if you drop the bass on electronic dance music, or EDM, it creates a kinetic pulse that generates a huge rave of rhythmic bliss and happiness.

Such is the goal of Tristan Fellenz who is bringing an EDM rave show called Kinetic Pulse to the Electric Lady on Saturday, May 8.

To the uninitiated, EDM music is electronic, relentless, and powerful. One song frequently blends into the next, and the light show is just as important as the music. If you are in the proper frame of mind it can elevate you to a trancelike state of motion and inner joy.

"I remember the first time I was exposed to it," says Tristan. "I went to Bonnaroo down in Tennessee back in 2012 or so, when I was 17 years old. The performer was called Pretty Lights. You can do a YouTube search for 'Pretty Lights Bonnaroo' and you'll see what I mean.

"It was kind of a transformation moment for me, that show. From then on I was a devotee of EDM and the dance raves that go with it. It's totally geared to a thriving dance scene, which is so appealing to me. There's an atmosphere of celebrating life that I don't find at other kinds of music events. I love it!

"In fact, I loved it so much that when I was living in Bloomington I started a small production crew to put on dance raves around town. We hosted a lot of shows for a while there. But now that I'm living back in Madison, I want to share that energy and enjoyment with my home town.

Tourism board OKs some money for local parks

Requests granted for portable pitching mounds

BY BOB DEMAREE

Parks Departments at both Hanover and Madison requested funding for portable pitching mounds at the Jefferson County Board of Tourism meeting Monday for ball fields both hope will help bring in more tourists as the parks seek to schedule more tournaments.

Both requests were approved, but not before some discussions about JCBT's purpose.

Hanover's request was for $2,912.67 to reimburse Hanover Parks Department for three portable pitching mounds that have already been purchased. JCBT board member Curtis Chatham, a longtime supporter of tourism through sporting events, camps and tournament, made the presentation for Hanover Parks and Recreation Director Scott Davidson, who was unable to attend due to ongoing activities at the park.

Chatham related the investments currently being made in the Hanover Parks program — fields have been upgraded and new scoreboards have been installed — along with many additional improvements planned that should bring people to the community. "This has my support that this will be a good partnership with Hanover to promote sports and recreation in the community," Chatham said.

What followed was a discussion about establishing a structure for similar requests to be made going forward but no official action was taken. Board president David Bramer suggested creating a process in which JCBT "formalizes our cycles and lets people know" when they will take place. Board member Todd Boone suggested they could do it twice a year, perhaps March and September, with those requests coming within those time frames.

After that, Madison Parks and Recreation Department Director Matt Woolard requested $10,000 to purchase eight portable pitching mounds — six for Rucker Sports Complex, one at John Paul Park and one at Kiwanis Park at a cost of $5,820 — with the remainder to "jump start work on concessions and bathrooms" upgrades needed at Rucker Sports Complex. The board ended up approving the portable pitching mounds but did not approve money for concessions and bathrooms.

Board member Trevor Crafton expressed support for Woolard's request, noting that providing quality athletic fields "is one of the greatest investments" since teams traveling to the county to compete in tournaments bring families that stay for the weekend in hotels while eating at restaurants and shopping at local businesses.

At the same time there were concerns about how much Woolard's request would immediately impact Jefferson County tourism.

Board member Nancy Crisp noted JCBT is charged with bringing tourism into the county. "Does this bring tourism dollars?" she asked, noting that board members are held accountable for doing just that. She said portable pitching mounds, while a worthy cause for local youth and athletic programs, may not necessarily impact tourism.

Boone, referencing that JCBT had approved funding for portable pitching mounds at Hanover, earlier in the meeting made the case that "Hanover has taken a lead on investment in their parks." He noted that Hanover has not just improved its facilities for athletic purposes, but is also planning musical events and other activities that will bring people to its parks.

"Hanover is showing more effort," said Boone, adding that those efforts could related to more tourism dollars coming through its parks.

Woolard said there are plans for improvements to Rucker Sports Complex, too. The city is seeking a $500,000 matching grant to make improvements to be completed in time for the facility's 30th anniversary in 2023. Woolard said while there are no plans for hosting tournaments this summer at Rucker Sports Complex, they will be coming in the future and the city is trying to prepare the facility for those opportunities. He said Madison hopes to install new all-weather artificial turf on the Rucker fields, which would make complex more usable and a greater and more consistent draw for sports tournaments.

JCBT, VMI moving closer to tourism contract

BY BOB DEMAREE

Visit Madison Inc. has worked without an annual budget since January while efforts to work out a contract with the Jefferson County Board of Tourism have continued. However, there were indications at Monday's JCBT meeting that a budget might finally be approved in May.

A contract that was proposed by JCBT earlier in this month and given to VMI for review, was returned to JCBT last weekend. Cari Morrison-Bear, VMI vice president, said revisions suggested by VMI were mostly to tighten up the language but JCBT board members have not had time to look over the change but a special meeting was scheduled for 5:30 p.m. on Monday, May 10, 5:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, JCBT has provided VMI with funding through the end of May.

As part of the contract discussion, board member Curtis Chatham asked about establishing data impact studies on each of the various festivals in Jefferson County and, even more specifically, numbers on local lodging occupancy during each event. That led to a discussion about tracking lodging occupancy rates based on the number of rooms in Jefferson County, which Sarah Prasil, VMI Marketing and Advertising Director, estimated will be about 450 after the new Fairfield Inn and Suites is completed this summer in the former Cotton Mill building.

However, that room total doesn't include Airbnb locations throughout county.

"It is a challenge to know where they all are," said Prasil, who expressed that VMI definitely would like to have that data.

Board member Nancy Crisp said she had found 71 locations in Jefferson County on the Airbnb app, but pointed out event that does not include all of them because some may not be showing, such as some similar to the cabins Crisp operates that are currently blocked off.

VMI has taken over marketing this year for the Madison Regatta and Roostertail Music Festival as JCBT allocated $10,000 to VMI for the effort. There was discussion about how that money is intended to be spent with Prasil noting she had the impression that it was intended more toward media buys, and she wondered about other costs such as use of a graphic designer, voice-overs and other ancillary costs.

Board member Todd Boone encouraged VMI to do "whatever you feel you have to do to get the word out, and take advantage of the money" and then work out those details with Regatta officials. Regatta officials had previously expressed having a budget of $19,000 for marketing that could also contribute toward costs of promoting the event.

Toward the end of the meeting, county resident Warren Auxier questioned whether JCBT's funding for VMI included money for an executive director's salary, noting that VMI had laid off its executive director, Tawana Thomas, in February.

"Why are they receiving that if she is not directly on the payroll?" Auxier asked. "If not needed, why are you providing for the extra salary?"

Morrison-Bear said Thomas is "currently still laid off" and that VMI is "looking at adding marketing support while we are evaluating personnel, and what do we need."

Auxier also questioned Prasil's remark earlier in the meeting about possibly needing additional funds for a graphic designer. He said he thought graphic design was part of Prasil's job description so VMI "should not have to go to an outside source for a graphic designer."

County Council member Gary Copeland, who is also on the VMI board, had high praise for VMI's staff including Prasil, Tiffini Poling, Katie Burress and Holly Love-Gibson.

"The girls are working very hard" and doing good work in promoting Jefferson County, Copeland said.

He attended St. Olaf College in Minnesota, and married his first wife, Grace Hildebrandt, during his student years. From there he went on to earn his Ph.D. in philosophy at the University of Maryland. While there, their daughter Sonya was born in Washington, D.C. Shortly after, Bob started his teaching career at the University of Wisconsin- Stevens Point. There he developed a love of trout fishing, which became a lifelong passion.

In 1967 he came to Hanover College where he taught philosophy until his retirement in 2014. He developed a creative range of courses, finding special purpose in his class "Concepts of Love" and his distinctive experiential class "Utopias and Intentional Communities." Over the years, many students let him know how impactful these courses were for them…. a source of deep satisfaction to him. He acted on his love for the College community in many ways - in the early 1970's he helped found a student coffee house, Dove Cottage, and throughout his career found special delight in sharing his folk singing and could be seen strolling campus in his beret. He held a deep respect for the life and art of Harlan and Anna Hubbard, taking many classes down to Payne Hollow so students could experience the beauty of their way of life. Later Bob helped found The Friends of the Hubbards and coordinated two conferences on campus dedicated to sharing and exploring the Hubbard way. His 47-year teaching career at Hanover stands as the second longest in the history of the College.

In 1981 he married Vicki Jenkins, and they shared a wonderful adventure of love, service, travel, and rootedness in the beauty of the natural world. Not an animal person at first, he came to be an extraordinary companion and advocate for animals in need. He volunteered at the local animal shelter for ten years, and over time lovingly accepted over 18 dogs and 9 cats into his home. He also discovered a love for international travel, most especially Japan and its beautiful gardens.

A LOVING FAMILY

His life will be cherished by his wife of 39 years, Vicki Jenkins of Dupont; his daughter, Sonya (Nathan) Rousseau of Taos, NM; grandson Malcolm Rousseau of Taos, NM; brothers Donald Rosenthal of White Settlement, TX, David Rosenthal of OK, and Thomas Rosenthal of Beaver Dam, WI; sisters Beverly Larsson of Hartford, WI, Karen Meyer of Oxford, WI, Jean Johannes (Jim) of New Berlin, WI, and Janet Butterbrodt (John) of Cadott, WI.; several nieces and nephews. Madison releases lineup of movies in the park

BY SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Summer is nearly here and the City of Madison is looking forward to warmer days and family-friendly activities. Between swimming at Crystal Beach, a night at the ballfield, and movies in the park, families will have plenty to enjoy all summer long.

"I look forward to a lively summer and am thankful to our local businesses and community organization for their support of our summer activities. Through their generosity, we can offer family-friendly activities, such as the Mayor's Movies in the Park, at no cost to the community. I am also thankful to our parks department for their efforts to offer summer programming both at Rucker Sports Complex and Crystal Beach," said Mayor Bob Courtney.

To kick off summer, the Mayor's Movies in the Park will make its return thanks to the generosity of numerous community sponsors. Families can head to Bicentennial Park at dusk on Friday, May 28, to enjoy a showing of "The Little Rascals." All movies are free to the community and are contingent on weather and Jefferson County health restrictions.

All movies will begin at dusk and there will be access to restrooms at Bicentennial Park. Guests must social distance from individuals who do not reside in the same household.

The 2021 schedule includes:

May 28 — The Little Rascals

June 19 — Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone

June 30 — Madison

July 23 — Monsters Inc.

Aug. 7 — The Sandlot

Aug. 28 — Moana

Sept. 18 — Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle

Oct. 2 — Hocus Pocus

On Saturday, May 29, Crystal Beach Swimming Pool will officially open for the summer. The City of Madison Parks Department will offer water aerobics Monday through Friday at 9 a.m. beginning May 31. Cost is $5 per session or $30 for the season. Swim lessons will also be offered at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. Monday through Friday during the weeks of June 7-18 and July 5-16. Registration is required, and cost is $50. Crystal Beach Season passes are only available to those 65 and older and are on sale now. Cost is $120. For more information, including how to register and purchase passes, visit Madison-in.gov/crystalbeach.

Baseball and softball season is also just around the corner. Registration is ongoing until the end of April. Teams and schedules will be announced the first week of May. Registrations must be made at madisonin.recdesk.com. If you have questions, call the parks department at 812-265-8308.

PARK

Another proposed ordinance change is one stating that park board members would serve without compensation. Board members are currently paid $300 each per year, so if they are to continue to be compensated the ordinance will need to be updated.

In addition, now that a three-way liquor license has been approved for Sunrise Golf Course, it was decided to update an ordinance prohibiting liquor sales at the course. The change will allow alcohol at Sunrise Golf Course ± or any other city park — if approved by the city for festivals.

Another change approved will allow fees at the city's campgrounds to be updated.

Although the Parks Board recommended all four changes, Madison City Council must still take formal action to amend the ordinances before they become official.

In other business:

• A discussion on cart rentals was held during a report by Sunrise Golf Course pro Jeff Bridgford. "We felt it was important to start the conversation of how cart rental fees are structured," said Courtney. "We believe we can actually maximize course revenue by taking a different approach. We will present our economic analysis at the next meeting in June."

• Parks Director Matt Woolard provided a presentation on new GPS devices that will be installed on the 32 golf carts at Sunrise Golf Course. "This will incentivize daily play," said Woolard, along with providing another benefit for those renting carts. Woolard said the city has signed a four-year contract at $5,000 per year for the service with an additional cost of $1,200 in the first year for installation of the devices.

• City Planner Nicole Schell updated the board on surveys received concerning the city's efforts to update its five-year master plan for the city parks. She said 63 responses have been received and the hope is that at least 100 will be received "to show a good variety of responses for the community." She said she was pleased that 52.4% of the respondents say they use the city's parks or trail system at least weekly. She said 74.6% said they would like Madison to spend more money on its parks.

• In an effort to better coincide the parks board meeting with the fact that claims are received earlier in the month, the board decided to shift its meetings to the first Wednesday of the month — rather than the last — with the next regular meeting at 6 p.m. on June 2. A special meeting will be held on Monday, May 3, with an executive session at 5:30 p.m. followed by a public meeting.

• Reported that Haley Courtney has been hired as summer manager for Crystal Beach pool, which opens Memorial Day weekend. "We're very excited to have her on our team," Woolard said.

• Streets Superintendent Tony Sorrells will be handling day-to-day management of the parks maintenance staff. "We kept arriving at the conclusion we needed some more management structure in place," said Woolard, and Sorrells was willing taking on that task. Woolard said the arrangement provides for having a larger maintenance staff that could be beneficial to both departments. "They are still parks employees, but Tony is overseeing them daily, assigns the tasks and follows up throughout the day."

• Woolard said a position has been posted for parks program coordinator. He said the city is "looking for an energetic person who will handle the programming with a sense of urgency, organization and creativity. I am confident that we will be able to find a quality candidate soon so that we can begin to plan and implement our vision for the way the parks department will run its leagues and tournaments."

• Mayor Courtney praised the work of the parks department. "As it relates to the direction of the parks as a whole, I couldn't be more pleased," he said. "The parks board is doing a great job and working well with the administration and support our efforts to upgrade parks, improve facilities management, obtain grant funding, and adopt new technology, all of which means the future is brighter than ever for the City of Madison Parks System."

HOUSE

Another item that will be there is a poster created by four women in the Jefferson County Jail during a visit in February of 2019 from Residents Encounter Christ, a organization that reaches out to residents of county jails and prisons.

Large colored-in letters display the words "Full Way House" — for the commitment to see the recovery process through — and "No" — for the things they want to leave behind like homelessness, feelings of being scared, alone, depressed and not being good enough. On the other side, an arrow points to "the right way" with the words welcome, safety, healing, home, family, love and live again.

Taylor said she hopes that's what the experience will be like for the women who stay at Ruth Haven. "We hope they will find what it looks to be part of family," she said, and help them to find their way toward a healthy life and realize "what their life can become."

The corner of the poster says, "Change of Heart." Taylor noted that's indeed part of the process in overcoming the life they had before. "They need to have a change of heart," she said, noting true recovery involves "shifting the concept" of who they are into what they can become.

"It doesn't have to be about doing drugs or living life in the streets," Taylor said. "They need to have a concept of who they are" and realize their worth. "We need to take them from where they are to living in a more healthy lifestyle."

One of the bedrooms at the Ruth Haven residential facility that will open soon on St. Michael's Avenue in downtown Madison.

By completing the program at Ruth Haven, "they learn and discover skills and tools to live a healthy life," Taylor said.

When she thinks of the women that JCTSI has helped and is working to help, Taylor sees people just like everyone else —people who want to be safe, happy and feel loved.

"They have had their issues, made some wrong turns and made bad choices, but deep down inside, they want the same things we all want," Taylor said.

Madison has been home to a Ruth Haven facility on Presbyterian Avenue since 2011, but the need to help more women prompted the agency to look for the second location. The former beauty shop and residence on St. Michael's will not only provide more living space, but room for classrooms and exercise equipment. The residents who stay there will be able to hold jobs but live under very strict conditions with a zero tolerance policy.

JCTSI also operates Hannah's Harbor in partnership with Hanover United Methodist Church. Hannah's Harbor provides a "next phase" residence for women who have completed the program at Ruth Haven. At Hannah's Harbor, women are still accountable to participate actively in their recovery, but with fewer restrictions and more freedom.

MUSIC

"We've rented the Electric Lady for May 8, and the bar will be open so it's age 21 and up. I have two lighting techs coming in, one for general lighting and one for laser effects. I have three big subwoofers coming, so the bass will be heavy, to say the least. It'll be me and two of my buddies spinning the music. One is Ryan 'Koga' Wells, and the other is Kristain 'Watermane' Johnson.

"I encourage anyone of any age to come and join us. It tends to be a younger audience usually, but it's not unusual to see people in their 50s and even older if they have the right mindset and love to get lost in the music. Really, you can be from any background and enjoy the show, as long as you are coming in with good intentions.

"It's a full sensory experience with the strong bass and all the lights. For me the very best shows are at festivals, where everyone is there expressing themselves and making new friendships. So we want to create that festival vibe at the Electric Lady, if we can. It will be fully immersive where you can kind of lose yourself in the flow. That's what we're going for.≈"My goal is for Madison to embrace this kind of experience and support it to the point where we can do it once a month. I'd be thrilled if we can keep this going and grow it."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

The live music schedule is wonderfully fat again this week! Multiple choices on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and even a Cinco de Mayo shindig down at the Elks Lodge next Wednesday, that is open to the public. One of the hot shows you might want to mark on your calendar is The Fabulous Hickbillies at Mad Paddle Brewery on Saturday. They played there a couple months ago and it was a total blowout party. Great energy and fun. Also on Saturday is the annual Steampunk Night at Thomas Family Winery with Erik Brunner on stage. And if you are out and about anytime on Saturday, swing by the Buy-Sell-Trade store on Main Street. Their big Madistock sidewalk music fest is happening all day, with lots of great local talent.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

PET OF THE WEEK

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has a number of dogs and cats and kittens available for adoption.

Marlon Brando, named after the actor because he acts tough but has a heart of gold, was brought in by animal control after running around downtown for a while. He was scared and acted aggressive at first to protect himself, but once he realized he was safe at the shelter he stopped his tough guy act, and showed what a sweet and loving guy he really is. Marlon has been working on his fear issues and has become a favorite of shelter staff. He seems to get along with dogs and cats and was kid tested over the weekend, passing with flying colors. The shelter does ask that anyone interested in adopting Marlon come visit him several times and have a secure yard for him as he's a flight risk when scared. He's been neutered and vaccinated, and his adoption fee is $100.

Fluffy is a handsome and loving domestic long hair cat. He likes to have all the staff's attention when he's out of his cage and will require lots of brushing and treats so keep that in mind if you're interested in adopting. Fluffy has also been neutered and vaccinated and his adoption fee is $80.

The shelter remains open by appointment only due to the COVID pandemic. Appointment days and times are Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Saturdays and Sundays from noon to 1 p.m. To schedule an appointment please email the shelter at animal.shelter39@jeffersoncounty.in.gov or call 812-273-1788.

To see a full list of pets ready for adoption, visit sisaveapet.com.

The shelter's new adoption policy requires that all animals be spay/neutered and have their rabies vaccination before they can leave the facility. Animals that haven't been neutered and vaccinated can be pre-adopted but they will remain at the shelter until their surgery is completed. Adoption fees have also changed with dogs set at $100 and cats $80.

Those with missing pets can call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption. Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours. For animal control issues in Madison, call 812-265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call 812-265-2648.

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

ATLANTIC CITY — Mixed martial artist Jesse "Bubba" Jenkins ended a 21-month layoff Friday night with an upset win over two-time Professional Fighters League (PFL) featherweight champ Lance Palmer on Friday night.

Jenkins, 33, lived in Madison at an early age and still has family here. He had not fought in almost two years due in part to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The fight was the former Brave CF champion and ex-Bellator fighter's first since signing with the PFL in 2020.

Meanwhile, Palmer (22-4) came into the bout on an 11-fight win streak dating back to March 2017 and was a 3-1 favorite.

Jesse "Bubba" Jenkins

Jenkins (15-4) used a series of takedowns to control the first two rounds and then held off Palmer in the third to win the decision.

Jenkins got his start in wrestling at Lide White Boys & Girls Club before his family moved to Virginia Beach. He signed with Penn State out of high school and later transferred to Arizona State as a senior where he was the 2011 NCAA champion at 157 pounds before going pro in mixed martial arts.

Carmouche to be 1st Black jockey in Derby since 2013

BY STEPHEN WHYNO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Long before Kendrick Carmouche started riding horses growing up in Louisiana, Black jockeys were synonymous with the sport.

Black riders were atop 13 of the 15 horses in the first Kentucky Derby in 1875 and won 15 of the first 28 editions of the race. Everything has changed since: Carmouche on Saturday will be the first Black jockey in the Kentucky Derby since 2013 and is just one of a handful over the past century. Carmouche is now one of the few remaining Black jockeys in the U.S. Much like Marlon St. Julien in 2000, Patrick Husbands in 2006 and Kevin Krigger in 2013, his presence in horse racing's biggest event is a reminder of how the industry marginalized Black jockeys to the point they all but disappeared from the sport.

"As a Black rider getting to the Kentucky Derby, I hope it inspires a lot of people because my road wasn't easy to get there and I never quit," Carmouche said.

Unwanted visits from cousin

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: A cousin of mine found out that we get all the different sports networks in our cable package, and ever since, he has invited himself over to watch games at our house all the time, on a weekly basis. This was frustrating in itself — but then recently, something unbelievable happened. He was over watching a game at our house, yet again, when my 65-year-old girlfriend began having severe chest pains (which we later learned was a heart attack). As I attempted to figure out what was going on and to help her, this relative said that he'd get out of our way and abruptly left. He just walked out the door, not bothering to call 911 or even to shut the door behind him.

What do I do about my cousin? — Put Out

Dear Put Out: This guy's behavior is so out of bounds; it's not even in the stadium. Treating your house like his own personal sports bar was rude. Turning his back on you and your girlfriend in a life-threatening situation was flat-out heartless. I really hope she's OK.

If he dares to invite himself over again after what happened, let him know you'll no longer be hosting him for games. It's that simple. Embrace the power of "no."

Dear Annie: My boyfriend and I will have been together three years next month. He doesn't say he loves me, and he refuses to talk about feelings in general. He won't make love to me or even hold my hand or kiss me. When I spend the night at his place, he avoids lying close to me in bed. He says he has no sex drive, but he just turned 50. I'm a nice-looking woman who stays in shape. The one time we've had sex in the past year, it was all about him — no concern for my needs. On top of this, he never compliments me. What should I do? — Lonely Girlfriend

Dear Lonely: The recipe for strong romantic relationships calls for affection, intimacy, dedication and communication. If physical intimacy were the only missing ingredient, I'd say that he should see a doctor about his low libido, as it can signal serious underlying health problems. But sex isn't the only missing ingredient. He's giving you nothing to work with. I know this is easier said than done, but I really encourage you to end this relationship and spend some quality time with yourself. It will be hard at first, but in the long run, you will feel much less lonely on your own than you do in this relationship. Return to the dating scene only after you'd rather be by yourself than with the wrong person.

Husband's hidden life

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My second husband and I were together for 20 years. I'll call him "Dominic." We met at a vulnerable time in my life, and he was the kindest man I ever met. Dominic wanted to get married immediately, but I was reluctant, as I'd just gotten out of a marriage with a cheater, liar and abuser.

Dominic begged me. Eventually, I caved. We got married and had a child, my fifth. (I had four from my ex.) Over the years, we had many ups and downs. One day I was getting ready to take a trip and found condoms and lubricant in his duffel bag. When I confronted him about it, he gave me a story. I tried to believe him.

Not long after that, he started buying new clothes and going to the gym. I suspected he had a girlfriend. When I asked what he was up to, he said he couldn't stand my nagging anymore. He moved out. Several months later, he filed for divorce, and during the process had to disclose financial records. That's when I found out he didn't have a girlfriend. He had a boyfriend. I was devastated. When I tried to confront him in arbitration, he wouldn't admit it. It's been four years since then, and I still can't believe it.

I keep thinking back to years back, when we found out our youngest child was gay. I told Dominic that we needed to show her our support, but he refused to even acknowledge the reality. Why would he lie like this? How did I not see it all those years? — Still Don't Understand

Dear Still: Don't feel bad for not seeing it. For one, Dominic's dating men now doesn't mean that he was never attracted to you. For another, it sounds as though he was doing everything he could to obfuscate his sexuality even from himself. It saddens me that societal pressures can drive a person so deep into denial. I hope that with time, as we become more accepting, stories like yours will become less common. In supporting your daughter, you're helping to create that brighter future.

Dear Annie: I am a 61-year-old man living with my girlfriend of three years. Let's call her "Brenda."

Brenda and I are both empty-nesters. My children and grandchildren all live out of state, unlike Brenda's two daughters and three grandchildren, who are local.

I love Brenda dearly. My problem is that her children financially exploit her. I won't go into the details, but her decisions to continually help them have led to foreclosure and personal bankruptcy. She cannot afford to continue to financially enable her children this way. She's barely able to put any money into her savings account. I'm all for helping, not enabling, those in need.

I've attempted to discuss this many times, but Brenda isn't receptive. I'm aware of the bond a mother shares with her daughters, and I fear my efforts will drive a deeper wedge between us.

I am unsure if we can continue this relationship, as we'd Brenda have a questionable financial future. I suggested couples counseling, to no avail. We've been planning to move to a warm state for retirement, and she mentioned moving her family with us, which I don't want. — Perplexed in the North

Dear Perplexed: It will be impossible to join your two lives together truly and harmoniously until she sets boundaries with her children. I would encourage you to read "Codependent No More" by Melody Beattie to glean more insight into the dysfunctional dynamics at work in your girlfriend's family. Codependence can be contagious, so it's important to stay vigilant about your boundaries.
